

PRE-LENTEN FUNCTIONS IN WASHINGTON SOCIETY

PRESIDENT RIDES
ON MUDDY ROADS

Mrs. Longworth's Birthday Tomorrow, Wedding Anniversary Sunday.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt took their customary Sunday afternoon outing yesterday, in the form of a horse-back ride through muddy roads in the suburbs. They observed their usual habit of driving to the edge of the city, where their horses awaited them, and they rode briskly for two hours, returning to the point where they mounted, and drove back to the White House just at dark. Mrs. Roosevelt wore a close fitting black habit with small black sailor hat, and black veil. The President and Mrs. Roosevelt will dine tomorrow evening with the Secretary of Agriculture.

Mrs. Longworth, wife of Representative Nicholas Longworth, will celebrate her birthday tomorrow, and on Sunday will celebrate the first anniversary of her marriage.

Mrs. Blagg entertained her Sunday school class of the Ninth Street Christian Church Friday evening. Business was transacted and the class reorganized. Mrs. Felter was elected president; Lillian Gale, vice president; Lulu Harris, secretary and treasurer. The class, which was known as class 11, will now be known as Naomi class. The remainder of the evening was spent in music, singing, and games. Refreshments were served, and a most enjoyable evening was spent. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Blagg, Mrs. Felter, Mrs. Nikirk, Mrs. Rose, and Misses Hatchett, Morgan, Mamie Williams, Jessie Warner, Katie Morland, Annie Simms, Lola Simms, and Aubrey Creel.

Mrs. Oxnard entertained a company of thirty-five at luncheon today at the Arlington.

Senator and Mrs. Elkins left Washington yesterday for Charleston, W. Va. Tuesday they will be hosts at a large reception in honor of the members of the Legislature of West Virginia.

Mrs. Allen K. Capron, Jr., was the guest of honor at dinner Saturday of Colonel and Mrs. Fuger.

The Georgetown Assembly will hold the last of a series of three successful dances they have given this season in Lathrop Institute Hall.

The committee includes Harris M. Crist, J. Orville Ecker, Rawlins Hume, and Leonard L. Nicholson. Mrs. George T. Dunlop, Mrs. William Orme, Mrs. Charles H. Craig, Mrs. Louise L. Wilson, and Mrs. J. H. Hildreth are the patronesses of each affair.

Miss Louise Hall and the Misses Gaines entertained a company of twenty at bridge whist on Saturday evening in the parlors of Afton House. A supper was served at 11 o'clock, followed by a short musical. The decorations were La France roses and asparagus vines.

Mrs. Frank W. Carden, 357 Thirteenth street northwest, will be at home informally tomorrow afternoon and evening.

Mrs. Wiley, wife of Representative Wiley of New Jersey, and her daughter, Mrs. Drummond, will be at home at the Highlands on Tuesday afternoon for the last time this season.

Mrs. Henry L. Taylor and daughter, Miss Robinson, were hostesses at a delightful afternoon of bridge whist at home in the Wyoming. The prettily appointed tables were lighted by silver candelabra, capped in shades of red, the minor decorations being in the same color. The rooms were banked with ferns and red roses. Mrs. Hall poured coffee, Mrs. Taylor served tea, and Mrs. Whitney sang. Others assisting were Mrs. Crosthwaite, Mrs. Dyer, Mrs. Thomson, and Miss Frye.

THREE CHINAMEN
CONVICTED OF MURDER

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 11.—The three Chinamen on trial for the murder of Dong Su were convicted of first degree murder. This is probably the first time in this city that Chinamen have been convicted of such a crime, as it is very difficult to get a verdict owing to the many obstacles in the way of securing the necessary evidence. Attorney David J. Smyth, who defended the men, at once asked for the usual time in which to file his motion for a new trial. Until that has been disposed of, sentence of death will not be pronounced.

The prisoners are Yung Gow, Jung Jow, and Mook Kung. As they stood up and heard the foreman announce the verdict which is to send them to the gallows, not one gave the slightest evidence of disappointment and not a line in their bland countenances changed as the interpreter repeated to them the decision of the jury.

Dong Su was fatally shot on the night of July 4, 1906, during the celebration in Chinatown. It was the direct result of the warfare among the gangs, and at the trial witnesses testified that during the racket made by the fireworks display the three men had deliberately fired into a race street house, fatally wounding Dong Su.

Rev. Frederic Poole, who was the best witness against the men, was himself shot in the arm by one of the prisoners. The trial was one of the slowest and most uninteresting ever conducted in this city, because of the difficulty in getting the evidence. The Chinamen, Ex-Director David J. Smyth, who conducted the defense, caused one of the sensations of the trial by attacking the veracity of the police witnesses and declaring that he had found by experience that policemen would not hesitate to lie when the justice for an arrest was at stake. The bold declaration coming from an ex-director of public safety and an ex-superintendent of the police seemed to impress the jury, but their verdict showed that it didn't.

BROAD TIRE BILL
HEARING THURSDAY

Measure Passed by House to Protect Asphalt Pavements.

Commissioner Macfarland announced this morning that he was in receipt of the "broad tire" bill from the District Committee of the Senate for consideration, and that, to secure a full expression of public opinion on the subject and the wishes of citizens who will be affected, he has set Thursday morning at 10 o'clock for a public hearing before the Board of Commissioners.

This bill, originated in the House through Representative Babcock, and has passed that body. It is now before the Senate.

The bill provides that wagons and all other vehicles with their loads weighing over two tons shall have tires not less than four inches wide. This legislation is thought necessary to protect the asphalt streets from the wear and tear of wagons, thus putting the District to an unnecessary expense.

THOUSAND DOLLAR
NOTE TOOK WINGS

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—The mystery of the flight of a bill from a wallet carried by a trusted employee of Broker C. C. Adist, is puzzling the police. The messenger carried $6,000 to the Union Trust Bank. The slip registered a $1,000 bill, one $5, one $10 bill, and the balance was in checks. The receiving teller first thought of the big bill, and after a hasty glance, exclaimed:

"There is no $1,000 bill here."

The messenger said he had kept the package intact from the time he got it until he laid it down at the teller's window.

It is said that several employees had access to this money after it was "made up," but that all the employees, like the messenger, are held in highest esteem by Broker Adist.

SEEK MISSING BOY.

The police were requested yesterday to assist in locating Stanley Arnett, fifteen years old, who has been missing from his home, 1022 Sixth street northeast, since Saturday morning. It is believed that the boy left the city, as he told several of his companions that he was going to New York.

YOUTH OF ELEVEN
ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

WAUPACA, Wis., Feb. 11.—Alex Hanson, an eleven-year-old boy, attempted to commit suicide here, and the reason is said to have been objections which were made to his marrying a thirteen-year-old girl. The boy lives with his mother, who was made a widow three years ago when her husband ended his own life.

Mrs. Hanson heard a shot in an upstairs room of her home and, hastening to the room from which the sound came, she found her son on the floor bleeding from a wound through his left lung.

CLOMAN PLATE
RIVALS KING'S

Military Attache at London Giving First Important Entertainment.

The Military Attache of the American Embassy in London and Mrs. Sidney A. Cloman, who, as one of the most interesting newly-married couples in London society, have established a reputation for the magnificence of their silver and silver gilt plate, will entertain at their first important dinner this week. They have taken the house, 110 Park street, just off Park Lane, and the second door from the residence of the Marchioness of Blandford.

Mrs. Cloman's superb plate was transported from New York to her London residence in huge tin covered, air-tight cases specially constructed for the purpose, which were so tremendously heavy as to require a big electric truck to convey them from the station to the house. The plate is said to be a formidable rival to the royal plate of King Edward, which is famous for its weight and beauty. The King has little solid gold plate, most of it being the handsome silver gilt ware, the gold pieces being used mostly as wall pieces on a background of rich red brocade, at state functions in the palace.

Mrs. Cloman will have among her guests at this coming dinner, the American ambassador, Whitelaw Reid, and the Naval Attache of the Embassy and Mrs. Gibbons, the latter formerly Miss Maude Ely, whose wedding took place last spring in this city. Mrs. Cloman was formerly Mrs. Victor Clement, whose small dinners at the Connecticut and the Chevy Chase Club were among the features of the past two seasons here. She was one of the many wealthy widows who find Washington society so attractive during the winter months. Captain Cloman was a popular bachelor in army and official circles, and their marriage was one of the most interesting affairs of this season. It was celebrated in Lakeside at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond, former South African friends, December 18, and they sailed immediately for the captain's new post in London.

The Congressional ladies of the Dewey have cards out for a tea Thursday afternoon, from 4 to 5 o'clock to meet Mrs. Charles Grosvenor.

Mrs. J. Granville Meyers, 1528 Columbia road, and Mrs. Fenton Bradford will be at home informally Wednesday, February 13.

The Council of Jewish Women will hold its next social meeting in the vestry of Eighth Street Temple tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. The program includes an interesting talk by Mrs. M. Langdon Reed, a current topic paper by Mrs. Simon Oppenheimer, and violin duet by Mrs. Lillian Coblentz and Mark Lansburgh, with Anton Kaspar at the piano.

Mrs. H. N. Taplin will not be at home at the Champlain today.

BONAPARTE IS UP;
HIS ARM IN SLING

Attorney General Charles J. Bonaparte, was at his desk in the Department of Justice today wearing his arm in a sling and suffering considerable pain from the fractured small bone of his left wrist. The injury was sustained by the attorney general on Saturday, from slipping and falling on the ice while going along Vermont avenue on his way to his office. As a consequence he was unable to be present at the dinner he gave to the Supreme Court, Saturday night, and he will cancel his engagement to make an address at the Lincoln Day dinner, to be given in Baltimore tomorrow.

Society's Wading Party
Amid Miniature Torrents
On Connecticut Avenue

Like Springtime Promenade With Maids and Matrons A-Plenty.

Washington society went wading yesterday.

On Connecticut avenue, where every Sunday afternoon the French heels of My Lady of Fashion bless the pavement, vulgarized all week by the tread of "the masses," all those who dwell in the neighborhood of Dupont circle appeared and promenaded, undeterred by the rivers that ran across the streets. Overhead the day was as perfect as Washington's perfect days ever are. It was as if late spring had put her hand on the snows of winter—and society, braving the thaw, was out to enjoy the sunshine.

From 3 until 6 o'clock the continuous "beauty show" kept up. The dignified legislator, the debonaire diplomat, and the benign minister of the gospel did fancy hop-steps to escape the torrents of melted snow. The women made the avenue look like a gigantic flower garden.

Society was wading—with its shoes on. The air, languorous as the beginning of summer, toyed at every corner with fluttering lingerie that never sees the garish light of day when pavements are dry. And here and there glimpses of my lady's stocking, fleeing as a dream, was like an acknowledgement of the blessings brought by the snow.

All afternoon the parade kept up from Dupont Circle, that charmed region where the automobiles of the rich graze the carriage wheels of the near-by, to Farragut Square, beyond which the parade does not go. There were girls, young married women and old married women, and all made the trip up and down the "route of style" three or four times. There were the escorts of the girls and the women, and there were the old beaux, not too old to make the trip oftenier than anybody else did.

When the sun set, feet were wet, but society had gone wading with its shoes on—and he who was not there to see replies today.
